Adam's Corner

Welcome to Mayfield church of Christ. If you are visiting with us, we are happy you are here. Please let us know if you have any questions for us. Please come back!

Tommy Berryhill responded last Sunday asking for the prayers of the church to be forgiven of his sins and the strength to overcome his sins. We are proud of Tommy. Let's continue to remember him in prayer.

Tonight we will study "Victory over Suffering". Do you ever struggle to make sense of suffering that you have went through or may be going through now? God has a remedy. Come study with us tonight on this very important and common struggle for many of us.

Let's worship God together!

We Love You!

Adam

Word of the Week

Forgiveness

The noun for forgiveness in the Old Testament is celiychah. It means “abundant forgiveness.” “Never does this word in any of its forms refer to people forgiving each other.” The first Old Testament verb for forgive is calach. It is translated as “to forgive, pardon” and is used only of God. W. E. Vine notes that while other terms may be translated as “to forgive,” calach is the only Old Testament verb with this as its primary meaning. The next term for forgive in the Old Testament is nasa’. Its basic meaning is “to lift, to raise high, to bear, to carry.” It is worth noting that nasa’ is used of both divine and human forgiveness.

Two other verbs with similar meaning are used in conjunction with the verbs listed above. The first is kaphar, often found hand in hand with the term calach. The verb kaphar means “to cover, to purge, to make an atonement, to make reconciliation, to cover over with pitch.” Atonement (kaphar) makes pardon (calach) possible. Another related term is kacah. This word is usually used with the literal meaning of “to cover” (can also mean “to conceal, hide”). Yet, there are a few places where it is used with the sense of “forgive.”⁹

A key noun in the New Testament is aphesis, and it means “the act of freeing and liberating from something that confines; release” or “the act of freeing from an obligation, guilt, or punishment; pardon, cancellation.”

The noun paresis is used only in Romans 3:25. Paul uses paresis instead of the usual aphesis. The Theological Dictionary of the New Testament comments on aphesis and paresis as follows: “The forgiveness denoted is almost always that of God. It is constantly needed, and is granted when requested so long as there is a readiness to forgive others. Its basis is the saving act of Christ....”

The key verb in the New Testament is aphiemi. This is the favorite verb in the Gospels for “to forgive.” It is frequently used in the Septuagint to translate the Hebrew verb calach. It has the basic idea of “to dismiss, release, let go, send away.” It is used for the cancelling of sins and debts.

The next verb is charidzomai, “to show oneself gracious by forgiving wrongdoing; forgive, pardon.” This is Paul’s favorite verb for “to forgive,” often translated simply as “to give” or “to grant” (See Romans 8:32). Another verb to note is apoluo. It means to “grant acquittal, set free, release, or pardon.” A verb that sounds similar to apoluo but is different in meaning is apolouo. This verb means to “wash something away from oneself, wash oneself, used in imagery of purification.”
